"Fame is to be sought, but not by force, but by the power of the mind. It is the power of the mind that makes a man famous, and it is the power of the mind that makes a man a great man. It is the power of the mind that makes a man a great man, and it is the power of the mind that makes a man a great man."

The Spring of 1882--Vernon's Prediction.

We wish to be clearly understood that our impressions relative to the approaching Spring are all in favor of UNUSUAL EARLINESS.

Yes! unfortunately of unusual earliness. It will set in suddenly and almost without warning, Summer heat.

We do not like to see such premature Spring. Give us rather the old-fashioned, steady Winter, and the gradual gradation with the Spring weather.

Why? Because otherwise we have to expect just as soon as the Spring comes, the heat of the Summer.

In the March issue of the Bulletin, and under the heading "The Spring of 1882," we drew attention to this fact, predicting unusual and premature heat, and then cold, frosty and rainy weather when we should expect Summer heat.

The editors of the Bulletin are expected, then, to notice the newspapers make mention of the extraordinary advancement of the season; the exceptionally early opening of the navigation, and the wonderful progress of crops and vegetation generally, weeks earlier than we are accustomed to notice such features during the Spring months.

Then "while the sun shines make your hay," but prepare for cold and wet in May. This early and premature weather, so full of smiles and so productive of bright visions respecting the approaching Summer will terminate, suddenly and abruptly, terminate, and give place to a condition of the very opposite character.

The year 1882, with its Monday Christmas, has already commenced badly. Its long list of life and property destruction nearly everywhere is anything but cheering. The outlook for a healthy season--after such a winter--is but a forlorn one, whilst, as we regard it, the agricultural outlook is of a still more formidable character.

A premature spring has never done a good turn yet, but many a bad one. Rapidly growing vegetation under the invigorating heat of the Spring sun is a joyous picture when reasonable, but when this is in progress in a period which experience teaches us has to be followed by frosty and generally unfavorable weather, the picture, on the contrary, becomes a sad one.

It is not our purpose, nor is it in our power to furnish dates or locate periods in which such changes are to occur. The season is altogether too exceptional for this, and our back records do not furnish us with sufficient data for such an attempt. All we can say is that in April and May there will be terms of unusual advancement, and again terms of the contrary character. We would prefer to see April rather wintry like than otherwise, for a cold April never yet did much harm, and seldom has been followed by a bad year. But a hot and muggy month and then a wet and cold May, casts a shadow over both the mid-summer and harvest time. As we look at the whole matter we think that we have but little to expect in a friendly way from the approaching Summer of 1882, but much the reverse. May it prove that we have been mistaken.---Vernon's Weather Bulletin.

Leave Taking.

Not all have learned the art of leave taking in an appropriate manner. When you are about to depart, do so at once, gracefully and politely, and with no dallying. Don't say "its about time I was going," and then settle back and talk on aimlessly for another ten minutes. Some people have just such a tiresome habit. They will even rise and stand about the room in various attitudes, keeping their host also standing, and then by an effort succeed in getting as far as the hall, when a new thought strikes them. They brighten up visibly and stand for some minutes longer, saying nothing of importance, but keeping everybody in a restless, nervous state. After the door is opened the prolonged leave taking begins, and everybody in general, and particularly the invited to call. Very likely a last thought strikes the departing visitor, which his friend must risk a cold to hear to the end. What a relief when the door is finally closed! There is no need for being offensively abrupt, but when you are ready to go--go.

Willard Johnson, the Oswego County (N. Y.) politician and ex-State Senator, is an inveterate whittler. He always carries in his pocket a supply of neat, seasoned pine sticks, so as never to be out of material; and, when out of doors, or inside where the whittling will not make any objectionable litter, uses his knife almost incessantly. This habit was acquired thirty years ago, he says, when he swore off as to tobacco, and needed something to quiet his nerves.

"What is this?" "This is a girl and her beau." "Which is the girl, and which is the beau?" "That is the girl with the white hair, and that is the beau with the black hair and the light pants." "Are they very fond of each other?" "Oh, yes, indeed. They are so fond of each other, and they borrow each other's clothes, and you can't tell each from the other. Ain't it fun?"

"Father," said an inquisitive boy, "what is meant by close relations?" "Close relations, my son," replied the father, "are relations who never give you a cent."

A drum manufacturer in Massachusetts, established in 1853, has converted during that time 30,000 sheep skins into drumsheads.

How Mining Will Surely Pay.

"No," no hoisting works--not if I know it. You can fool away a good deal of good, hard coin on hoisting works. "How in the thunder do you run your mine?" "On the assessment plan, sir. That's the latest and most improved method. When we have a good map of the lower workings we don't need any works to speak of. I keep a man in Virginia at $50 a month to superintend the location and write weekly letters, and I stay in San Francisco, in my office in Pine street, and levy the assessments every sixty days; that's as often as the law allows. I am the President, Board of Trustees, Secretary, Treasurer, and everything--more especially the Treasurer. Of course I draw salary for all the office, and when I get through drawing salaries I turn the rest over to the agent in Virginia to pay off the bonds; he saves enough to pay himself. This is what I call scientific mining, sir. You get the silver out of the pockets of the stockholders and leave the vast argentiferous and auriferous deposits in your claim for your children, who can go right ahead and develop the mine just as soon as the public quit putting up, which isn't at all likely to happen. As long as people are being born in Nevada and California my mine will run on like a chronometer clock. "But," said the Utah man, "my style of mining keeps lots of men at work." "So does mine," quoth the Golden Gate chap. "Thousands of men are working night and day to pay the assessments. It keeps the country as busy as a beehive," and the speaker sauntered to the telegraph office to order an assessment No. 35.---[Denver News.

There is no use in disguising the fact. The pardoning power under Gov. Blackburn has been shamefully, fearfully, outrageously abused. Sensible, conservative men are awakened to a realization of the fact and are beginning to discuss, in a quiet, serious way the evil effects upon society of such a course as is being pursued by the humanitarian in power at Frankfort. Jurors are discouraged and prosecuting officers have no heart to enter upon the discharge of their duty with map and rim. The result is a "loose way of enforcing the law and a general looseness in everything, all brought about by the wholesale and indiscriminate turning loose at Frankfort."

It was a sorry day for society and the Democratic party in Kentucky when Senator Looker, the phoenix of reason and nominated Dr. Luke P. Blackburn to the highest office within the gift of the people of the State. Another such administration and the control of affairs will pass into the hands of the Republicans. "The black eye is already to be seen."---[Owingsville Outlook.

A few days ago, in Maryland, a man punished his little child, twelve years old, for giving food to a playmate, by hanging her head down by the ankles from a rafter, and there beating her, leaving her all night in that position of torture. Now we hear of a mother in Arkansas, who, after having a quarrel with her husband, broke the necks of two of the children, aged seven and four, threw them into a pond, and then jumped in with her babe in her arms--all four bodies being afterward found. The existence of such fathers and mothers suggests that the law has a more important duty than it has yet undertaken, in caring for children.

The stage of a Western theater took fire the other evening, but a panic and rush for the door was averted by the manager who, with great presence of mind, slipped to the front and said: "Ladies and gentlemen--we have prepared a little surprise for you. A new being heated, and in a few moments waiters will pass through the audience and distribute it." After that the audience had to be pulled out one by one.---[Philadelphia News.

"The Lincoln Journal" tells this: Girls ought to be warned of fearful danger to be incurred in marrying railroad men, especially brakemen. It is related that the other night a member of that hard-working fraternity, on being aroused from a dream of an impending crash, was found by the neighbors sitting up in bed holding his wife by the ears, having nearly twisted the terrified woman's head off in his incessant attempts at "down brakes."

Eighteen years of incessant headache were endured by Andrew J. Miller of Warren, Ky. Surgeons lately missed part of his skull, and thus relieved the pressure which had caused the trouble. He was warned to stay quietly indoors for a month,

Chang and Eng.

In answer to a correspondent who writes us for information on the above subject, we have compiled the following information: Eng and Chang were born simultaneously on the 15th day of April 1811, and died at the age of sixty-three years. They were conjoined together by a patent, complex, which entered the body of each in the region of the right pocket. This connecting arrangement necessarily threw them a great deal in each other's society. When they were boys their lives were rendered more or less unhappy by their widely different tastes. Eng was very fond of our apples in his youth, and when at night he rolled and tossed upon his couch with a large stock of apples on hand, Chang had to lie awake and get the benefit. Later in life Chang developed a strange longing for the flowing bowl, while Eng was a Good Templar. When Eng went to the Lodge the worthy outside guard would refuse to let Chang in because he couldn't give the pass-word, and as Eng couldn't go in and leave Chang in the ante-room, he had to go home and wait till another meeting.

Eng was a Mason and Chang was a Knight of Pythias, and they used to give each other away sometimes and have lots of fun. Eng was a Half-Breed and Chang was a Saltwater, and that made it all about attending cautions.

Chang joined the Episcopal Church and believed in sprinkling, while Eng was a Baptist, and not only got immersed himself, but fixed it so that Chang got his sins washed away at the same time. Once in a while Chang would get an invitation to a private party in a set to which Eng did not belong, and then they had to settle the question by putting Eng on each other as to whether they should go or remain at home. Chang died first, and Eng died a few hours later as a matter of courtesy. Eng was not prepared to die, and regretted that he was not consulted by Chang before the important step was taken, but he said it would save the expense of two funerals, and he wanted to do what was right. The lives of these two men were somewhat peculiar in many respects. There were many little nameless annoyances to which each were compelled to submit, and which would not at first occur to the student. For instance, Chang had to get up and go for the doctor in company with Eng whenever Eng's children had the croup, and whenever Chang's wife thought there was a burglar in the woodshed Eng had to get up in his night-shirt and go with his brother in search of the villain. They couldn't ride the best velocipedes, and when Chang got billing drunk Eng had to go to the jug with him, and stay there till the fine was paid. Among the many blessings which cluster about us, and are showered down upon us through life, we are prone to lose sight of the fact that, with all our sorrows and disappointments, we were not born Siamese twins. Why Do They Use Salt?
The Lancet calls attention to the increasing adulteration of beer with salt, especially in East London, where one analyst reported that twenty-four samples, examined by him during the last quarter, contained salt. The quantity of salt, though not stated, is presumed to have been sufficient to constitute a case of adulteration. The Lancet says, "the purpose of the salt is, of course, to make the beer-drinker thirsty, and to induce him to drink more than he intended," and it adds that the offense "is a crime which ought to be punished with exceeding severity." It does not seem probable that this is the true motive of the "drink-sellers" in adding salt, inasmuch as the quantity used would hardly have the effect attributed to it. It may have been added by the brewer with an idea to its preservative action, or by the dealer to restore the flavor partially destroyed by the dilution of the beer with water.

"Got a conundrum for you Johnnie, invented it myself," said a boy to a playmate. "What's the difference between a puddle you're dragging by a chain, and a rotten tree trunk?" After a little deliberation Johnnie passed. One is a fed dog and the other a dead dog. "Them kind is awful easy when you know how." So thought Johnnie, and on his way home, he built one in a similar plan which he tried to explode on the maternal head. "I say, ma, here's a riddle, made it myself. What's the difference between the wax figger of a lady, and pa not letting me go to the circus last week? Cause one's a sham dame and t'other's a—." "Ow! ow! ow! that hurts, I tell you can't you take a feller of your size?" The conundrum factory has been closed for repairs. [Elevated Railway Journal.]

PLAYING POKER FOR A BRIDE.
Two bloods of Salina, Kan., were rivals in love, and decided upon a duel to settle the question of possession. They selected their seconds, secured a surgeon, and retired to a sequestered nook, where they spread a blanket and the deadly work began. At the first deal one of the rivals got two pairs, jacks and deuces, and failed to fill. His hated rival showed down four kings and took the queen. The surgeon got $10, the seconds got disgusted, and the loser got drunk, while the winner got married.

A Posey county justice concluded a recent marriage ceremony thusly: "Them as this court has just joined together, let no man put asunder; but suffer little children to come unto them, so help you God."

Drunkness is no excuse for crime. The law presumes that every person intends to do that which he does. A parcel gift of personal property must be accompanied by possession. The attempt to commit a felony or misdemeanor is an indictable offense. The mortgagee and not mortgagor must pay the fees for recording the mortgage. A verbal release of debt, not founded on a valuable consideration, will not bar an action. Any one who takes possession of a minor's estate without authority of the law may be held responsible as a guardian. Insurance of the law is no excuse for the commission of crime, but ignorance of facts may render a civil contract voidable. Guardians, if practicable, must look out the money of their wards, on good security, and must collect the interest annually. An unwritten will of personal property is valid when the property does not exceed $500, and the bequest is made during the last sickness of the decedent. A person may have his domicile in one county or State, and his citizenship in another. Citizenship is not lost or changed by residence abroad, so long as the "intention to return" exists. An action for the recovery of specific property may be brought without giving bond specified in the Code when the simple question of title is tried, and the possession of the property is not undisturbed. If an administrator or executor gives a note, or makes any other contract in his representative capacity which the law does not authorize, he is liable to the estate, but is not individually liable upon the same. The latter is the natural guardian and custodian of his children; but, in case of separation, their custody may be given to the mother, if the father is from any cause unfit for their control or unable to support them. It is a violation of the law for the occupiers of lands under a common fence to turn the stock within the general inclosure during the cropping season. The party so offending commits an indictable offense, and is civilly liable for all damages that ensue. There is no warranty of title in an administrator's sale, but a personal representative is bound to make the purchaser as valid as possible of such title as he has. He is liable, personally, for all damages arising from his failure to follow the law. The voluntary concurrence of competent minds is required to make a valid contract. If deception be practiced by either of the parties in a material matter, or either be intoxicated as to be unable to comprehend the nature and effect of the transaction, this invalidates the contract.

American Newspapers in 1882.
The American newspaper directory, which will be issued next month by Geo. P. Rowell & Co., of New York, will contain the names of 10,411 periodicals in the United States and Territories, which is a gain of 341 in the year just passed. The number of daily papers has increased in a somewhat larger proportion, and is now represented by a total of 998 against 921 in 1881. The largest increase has been in New York—10 dailies; 129 of all sorts. Illinois and Missouri show a percentage of gain which is even greater, while Colorado leads all others in the percentage of increase, both in daily and weekly issues. California, Nebraska, Nevada, Oregon, South Carolina, Tennessee, Vermont, and West Virginia have fallen behind 1881 in the total number of periodicals. In Georgia, Maine and Massachusetts the suspensions have exactly counterbalanced the new ventures. In every State not mentioned above, and in the Territories, there has been an increase.

An Iowa farmer put up twenty-one one-year-olds for fattening, and for the first twenty-one days fed them on shelled corn, of which they ate eighty-three bushels. During this period they gained 837 pounds, or upward of ten pounds to the bushel of corn. He then fed the same hogs for fourteen days on dry corn meal, during which time they consumed forty-seven bushels and gained 535 pounds, or eleven and three quarters pounds to the bushel. The same hogs, next fourteen days on corn meal and water mixed, consumed fifty-five and one half bushels of corn, and gained 731 pounds, or thirteen and a half pounds of pork to the bushel. He then fed them fourteen days on corn meal cooked, and after consuming 45 bushels of the cooked meal the hogs gained 799 lbs., or very near fifteen pounds of pork to the bushel of meal.

No lady who has passed through the Divorce Court can, at the present time, appear at Court, says the London Truth, however blameless her conduct may have been. Recently the Queen has been disposed to relax the stringency of this regulation in special cases, where no fault of any kind has been attributed to the lady. The matter, however, was submitted to the Lord Chancellor and other officials, and their opinion was not in favor of this proposal. Now that the fact has been demonstrated that this earth will continue to revolve on its axis for at least ten million years more, we would request our subscribers to hesitate no longer about paying up for one year in advance. We may be sanguine, but think this opportunity for displaying faith should not be neglected. Any remarks?—[Hacksack Republican.]

To raise cows for the dairy they should not be allowed to become fat at any stage of growth, and should be brought to calf before two years of age. Early breeding develops large milking powers.

The Newer Arithmetic.
A bank has $100,000 in its vaults. The cashier has $100,000 in his pocket. The clerk has $100,000 in his hand. The teller has $100,000 in his eye. The bookkeeper has $100,000 in his head. The auditor has $100,000 in his stomach. The treasurer has $100,000 in his pocket. The president has $100,000 in his hand. The vice-president has $100,000 in his eye. The secretary has $100,000 in his head. The treasurer has $100,000 in his stomach. The president has $100,000 in his pocket. The vice-president has $100,000 in his hand. A house painter consumes forty-eight minutes in lighting his pipe; fifty-five minutes in telling stories; twenty-two minutes in watching a kitchen girl; thirty-six minutes in binding up a sure finger, and quits work nine minutes before six. How much time did he best his employer out of, and how long will it take him to work himself to death?

A boy who is content on an errand stops to watch three dogs, plays marbles with four boys, climbs two shade trees, takes a short jaunt on a velocipede, makes up facts on three girls and sits on a lumber pile for fifteen minutes to help another boy to learn to smoke. What did he get when he got home, and how long did it take him to make his mother believe that he had come in two minutes ahead of chain lightning?

A certain grocer, whose scales only weigh fifteen ounces to the pound, sells 320 pounds of various goods every twelve hours. Find what he gains weekly, and after you have figured it up, do your trading with some other house.

A lady desires to divide six sunflowers among five girls so that each girl can have one to a party. How can she do it without cutting one of the girls in two?

A dog starts to overtake a cat. She has seventy feet the start and knows that he means business. At the end of every rod she slips back two inches and he gains four inches. How far must he leg it to overtake her and hush her yowls forever?

Kate Shelley, to whom the Iowa Legislature has just given a gold medal and $2000, is only fifteen years old. She lives near the Moines, at a point where a railroad crosses a gorge at a great height. One night there was a furious storm and the bridge was carried away. The first that the Shelleys knew of it was when they saw the headlight of a locomotive flash down into the chasm. Kate climbed to the summit of the bridge with great difficulty, using an improvised ladder, and the engineer's voice answered her call, but she could do nothing for him, and he was drowned. Then she remembered that an express train was almost due, and she started for the nearest station, a mile distant. A loud high bridge over the Des Moines River had to be crossed on the road—an easy thing to do in calm daylight, but perilous in stormy darkness. Kate's light was blown out, and the wind was so violent that she could not stand. So she crawled across the bridge, from timber to timber, on her hands and knees. She got to the station bedraggled and exhausted, but in time to give the warning, though she fainted immediately.

On Saturday, March 4, the first instance of the propulsion of a street-car by electricity took place in England at the works of the North Metropolitan Tramways Company, Leytonstone. Under the seats of the car four accumulators were placed, and they were connected with electro-motors, which rotated the wheels of the cars by means of pinions. The weight of the accumulators—thirty-hundred pounds—was a decided objection, although a five-horse power was obtainable for five-hundred. A grating sound of the pinions was another defect, which, of course, is easily corrected. It is asserted that cars can be propelled in this way at one-half the cost of horses, and it is proposed to drive cars and other vehicles in the same way.

At the recent visit of General Hancock to the city of Little Rock, Arkansas, while a military salute of thirteen guns was being fired at the arsenal, a premature charge blew off three fingers and a thumb from the hand of a brave soldier named Geitz. The whole hand had to be amputated above the wrist. In the hospital General Hancock visited him, expressing his heartfelt sympathy, and in conversation with him said: "Well, my gallant friend, we all deeply deplore the accident; and now let us assure you that so long as I live you shall never want for anything."

"The bravest are the tenderest." It will astonish some people to learn that since 1877 there has been an increase in the consumption of tea grown in India amounting to 20,500,000 pounds, while, at the same time, there has been a decrease in the consumption of tea grown in China of about 9,000,000 pounds. The fine art of adulteration in China apparently does not pay, as other people will live to learn when putting tampered articles on the market.

Everything has an egg and omelet flavor preparatory for Easter. The windows are decked with fresh laid novelties of egg-shape or at least an egg-outline. The latest in the Easter pin-cushion, oval in shape, covered with a bright satin and a corner of bright brocade or plush. Oval shields covered in garnet or peacock silk, with Japanese ornaments, are for photograph stands or memoranda. The little satin egg-cosies drawn up round a yellow daisy chick peeping out of his nest are for no other earthly use one can discover, but to look pretty. Eggs of ivory and ivory answer for thimble cases or hold a string of garnet beads, a skein of gold thread or such choice trifle. The Kyoto eggs are pocket bonhomies, just large enough to carry a sufficiency of carol-moons of crystallized violet leaves for a morning.

Real birds' eggs, soft blue or pale brown, with speckled ends, are grouped on nests of fine carded cotton that really looks the same material that clouds are made of, but it hardly compliments a friend's taste or sensibility to present such an Easter gift at cost of the pain of some suffering bird. The artificial eggs of composition—celluloid and tinted alabaster—are delicate as nature, and less fragile, as well as more humane in sentiment. [Boston Transcript.]

Why doesn't he count the years? In the green room of a Parisian theater the conversation turned upon the delicate subject of age. Presently a gentleman visitor ventured upon the indiscreet query: "Now, what age are you, my dear friend?" addressing his remarks to Mlle X., who certainly can no longer be considered in her first youth. "What a question, indeed!" said the lady, "how can that possibly interest you?" "Simply curiosity," responded the visitor. "Well, then, I will frank with you. Really, I do not know. One counts one's money, one's jewels, and one's deeds of value, because it may happen that they could be lost or stolen, but as I am absolutely certain that no body will take a year from my age, and that I shall never lose one, why, where is the need of counting?"

An illustration in the Scientific American exhibits in a striking manner how the human hand can in the short time of three months deeply impress its grasp on the hickory helve of a hammer used in welding. The hammer, it says, is held loosely in the hand, and every blow is attended by a slight motion of the handle under a varying grip. The constant attrition causes the muscles of the palm and fingers to feel themselves, so to speak, in the tough wood, with an impression as perfectly reproducing the inner surface of the hand as would be obtained by squeezing a roll of putty. The oval handle is one inch in its shortest diameter, and where it is worn deepest by the thumb and forefinger only three-sixteenths of an inch of wood remains.

Although the banana grows spontaneously throughout the tropics, where cultivated its yield is prodigious, for an acre of ground planted with it will return, according to Humboldt, as much food material as thirty-three acres of wheat, or over 100 acres of potatoes. The banana is the food of millions who could not well subsist without it. In Brazil it is the principal food of the laboring classes, while it is no less prized in Cuba.
